Overview

Alicia H. Koepke is a shareholder of the firm and serves as co-leader of the Litigation and Dispute Resolution Group. Alicia focuses her practice on employment and business law and related litigation. She regularly advises companies of all sizes on business and employee management issues, including protecting confidential and trade secret information; preparing and enforcing non-disclosure, non-compete and non-solicitation agreements; preparing and implementing employment policies and agreements; obtaining background checks and drug testing; complying with wage-and-hour obligations; making religious, disability and other accommodations; avoiding and responding to complaints of unlawful conduct, such as discrimination, harassment and retaliation; implementing terminations and layoffs; and assessing other rights and responsibilities of companies, officers, directors, supervisors, employees and applicants. In addition to advising, conducting workplace investigations and training her clients, Alicia represents clients in business and employment disputes before government agencies, in arbitration and mediation and in state and federal courts.
